Asel Palmer Carries Off Fine Trophy

The Leader takes much pleasure in announcing the signal success in an oratorical line of one of our ambitious young men, Asel Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer. Asel is in his junior year at the Agricultural College of Utah and against heavy competition recently carried off an elegant trophy for oratory. This is an unqualified honor for this young man and is a reward for honest, faithful effort. Asel has done himself, his parents, his town and his alma mater credit. The Leader hastens to extend its congratulations to him on his success.

"Fine Feathers"

Billed for March 16

Local theatre-goers will be pleased to see that the great American play, "Fine Feathers," is coming to the Opera House, Thursday, March 16th, for one night only. This famous New York success portrays a lesson that is widely needed in American domestic life and in the present production the lead is entrusted in very capable hands. Miss Jane Babcock and Jack Curington, with an all-star cast. The dramatic critic of the Edmonton Journal pronounces this play even better than "Within the Law." The United Producing company are handling the show. The present cast came direct from Chicago to Edmonton.

Reports from Logan tell of the satisfactory progress of two of our popular girls, Miss Allen and Miss Holmes. Both are students at the A. C. and are doing fine work.

Local Jap Victim Of Dread Cancer

Atsuki Furukichi, a local Japanese, died Saturday afternoon of cancer of the stomach. He has been a sufferer for a long time and his death was not unexpected. The funeral service was held Sunday afternoon with full Christian rites. Mr. Evans officiated. The Jap colony assembled to pay their last respects to their departed friend and comrade.

Furukichi came to Raymond a year and a half ago and was a well known in local Japanese circles.

WOMENS' INSTITUTE

The Womens' Institute will hold a meeting at the Card Hotel, next Wednesday afternoon, March 15th. The following program will be rendered:

Report on the Womens Institute convention at Edmonton—Mrs. Rouse.

Some of the secrets of successful cake making—Mrs. Witbeck.

Vocal solo—Mrs. Snow.

Labor saving suggestions for the home—Mrs. Devoe Woolf.

Ladies Quartette—Mrs. C. W. Card and Company.

The Raymond Mercantile is making extensive improvements to their already spacious and well-equipped departmental store. A new maple floor has been put in, and the interior is being renovated throughout. Next year will likely see a handsome brick front built on this progressive mercantile house.

Miss Fawns has severed her connections with the staff of King Brothers and has been succeeded in the ladies wear department by Miss Olga Anderson.

Japanese Donate To Patriotic Fund

The Raymond Japanese Society has made the contribution of $54 to the Patriotic Fund this week, and about the same amount was also sent to the Canadian Japanese association at Vancouver, to aid the Japanese Volunteers who are now under military training there. They now number over 225 and the regiment is getting stronger every day.

This society was organized last year by the Raymond Japanese colony of Raymond and the adjoining districts. The main purposes of the society are:

1. For the purpose of social intercourse, mutual helpfulness.

2. For making provisions by means of contributions, donations or otherwise against sickness, disability, unavoidable misfortunes, or death.

A general meeting of this society was held on Jan. 15th 1916 and the following officers were chosen:

Managing officers—Henry K. Iwasa, Tasaburo Takeda, S. Iyama, H. Iki.

Committee—T. Ohtake, K. Koido, M. Asato, K. Miyauchi, G. Tanaka, Ito, J. Akiyama, Y. Y. Hironaka.

Next Monday and Tuesday at the Rex there will appear the picturization of that popular novel and famous play, "The Virginian." In it is starring Dustin Farnum whose name is enough to insure a packed house. "The Virginian" is a pulsating fiction monument to the West that is fast disappearing. It is a story of red-blooded people that you will like immediately. Don't miss this famous Lasky release.

Walter Barratt has proven himself a hero every inch of him. Without the least ado, and unknown to his friends, climbed on the train Thursday morning, and arriving in Lethbridge walked to the recruiting station and signed on with the Klitties. Walter has been with the O'Brien-Nalder company about 7 years but the call of his country was too strong. Mr. Wilcox, recently of the Neal butcher shop has also donned the khaki with the Klitties. This makes twelve Raymond men in the Lethbridge Highland battalion.

William Howard, of Raymond, left Tuesday morning for Medicine Hat, where he enlisted with the 175th battalion. This makes the 6th man from this town to enlist with the 175th. Mr. Howard would be a credit to any regiment as he has served with the 2nd and Lancashire regiment, one of the most famous in the Old Country. He has also certificates from the St. John Ambulance. He went in with his brother, Private James Howard.

The marriage was solemnized recently in Salt Lake of Miss Emma Brandley daughter of Theo Brandley, of Stirling, and Mr. Ben Peterson, of Raymond. Both of the contracting parties are prominent figures in the social life of the community and this pretty event will be an interesting item to their friends here.

Charles Karren left this morning for Calgary on a business trip. While in the northern metropolis Charley will get in touch with the political situation.

Mrs. Avilda Matheson, of Lac la Biche, is visiting with her mother, Mrs. Andrew Rasmussen and expects to remain here for a few months.

Mrs. J. Anthony Rasmussen, of Salt Lake, is at present in southern California enjoying a rest in that salubrious climate.

Misses Jean Miller, Leone Holman, Belle Corless and Hattie Card, of Raymond, attended the dance Thursday night.

Mrs. G. W. Heathershaw is expected to arrive tonight from Des Moines where she has been wintering.

Council Will Support Gym Movement of The M. I. A.

At the regular meeting of the town council held on Feb. 3rd, D. P. Woodruff was appointed secretary-treasurer at a monthly salary of $40. James Parkinson withdrew from the field. Mr. Woodruff has had a wide experience in municipal work, having been assessor and collector of Big Horn county, Wyoming, for several years.

J. J. Gibb and Mrs. Jack Turner appeared in behalf of the gymnasium movement launched by the M. I. A. They asked for a cash appropriation. Ald. Karren and Ald. Hennion were appointed a committee to investigate and report. It is generally understood that the council will give liberal support to this worthy movement and the school board will probably donate the old school building.

Dr. Beaman, health officer, asked the council to get out notices and articles dealing with a general clean up of the town and environs. The medical officer was authorized to proceed with this matter himself.

The taxes on the Relief Society's property was remitted.

The auditor's report was read and accepted.

An important subject dealt with was the identification of certain graves in the public cemetery. Thursday was set as the day for the citizens who had relatives buried to meet a committee, D. Fowler, Ed. Hodges and D. P. Woodruff, at the cemetery and identify the unknown graves. Very few appeared and there are still quite a number of graves without mark of any character.

Mrs. Stoddard is at present in Salt Lake City with her daughter, Mrs. Judd, of that city.

INDIA AND SUEZ CANAL NOW OBJECTS OF THE TEUTONS

Photos by American Press Association.

1.—British vessel in Suez canal. 2.—Admiral Togo of Japanese navy. 3.—Map of Mediterranean and the canal. 4.—Map showing how canal reduces distance from Orient to North Atlantic ocean and route to be taken in view of submarines operating in Mediterranean. 5 and view at right—Scenes in Suez canal.

THE Suez canal is England's gate to the Orient. India is a vast empire which yields $500,000,000 a year to Great Britain. The entire country is an immense treasure house from which gold and jewels have been pouring for untold centuries.

The canal and India thus supply the objectives of the Great Teuton drive through Turkey and to the near east. A campaign of Turkish and German forces against the canal and Egypt would not be as difficult an enterprise as the factors involved would seem to indicate, according to the opinion held by military authorities in Constantinople. They explain three wherewithals that such an undertaking would have next to impossible are unfamiliar with the means of communication between Constantinople and the canal and forget that the food resources of Arabia and Syria are fully sufficient to meet the needs of a large army.

To go from Constantinople to the sea, the route is through the Taurus mountains, over the Anatolian railroad and its branch connecting, would require about a forty-eight hour for military trains. At present the old pass road through the Cilician gate to Taurus would be the most direct. The road has been improved by thousands of Armenians, who had been drafted into the Ottoman army for the purpose. The work was directed by Turkish, German and Austrian engineer officers. Motor trucks could make the trip from Haami to Taurus in from six of eight hours, especially if, as is asserted, they were assisted up the steeper grades, of which there are three.

Canal Well Fortified.

The line thus fortified is continuous and runs from Port Said, on the Mediterranean, to Port Tewfik, on the Red Sea, parallel to the canal's channel.

It is known through the last reports of M. Jonnat, president of the Suez company, that the canal is 146 kilometers in length. Its breadth at ten meters from the bottom runs from forty-five meters up to a hundred meters across. At certain points the soundings have measured a depth of eleven meters. Thirteen large water stations have been constructed on the canal. The lake, formed in the plain of Pelus, by a flooding of salt water, adds to the force and the north part of the maritime passage up to Port Said, where the canal is 146 kilometers long.

Another part, almost of equal length, traverses the salt lakes. In brief, the canal is not nearly as complicated except along a front of about sixty kilometers, divided by the lakes in sections from the middle to the south end. The maritime defense is naturally highly developed. Ships armed with guns of great caliber and long range protect the canal and the shore, gun-are mounted upon the shore and the canal, and numerous small torpedo boats sail about the lakes. Finally, wireless and the telegraph could furnish information as to the movements of the ships and permit the immediate of formidable places of artillery handling mainly by marines.

Railroad Along Canal.

It is to be noted that as there is a railway along the length of the canal upon the bank toward the Nile and connected by neighboring railway lines with the Egyptian railway—that is to say, with Cairo, the capital, and with Alexandria, the chief port of the country, the defense never is lacking in vicinals and mountains.

The Teutonic designs on India are old. They are at least as old as the "Bull to Baghdad" protest. The Suez canal is Germany's "Bull canal," the symbol of her dreams for empire.

Germany, the connecting link from the North Sea and beyond the British empire's crown. From the standpoint of war strategy, India is England's first line of defense. Several years ago the London Times thundered a warning to the British government and the British people.

And what of Russian ambitions? The history of the nineteenth century is filled with the rivalry of Great Britain and Russia, as poignant and as relentless as the rivalry of the United States and Japan.

checks passing through the country's clearing houses were in volume never before reported; upward of figures were attained in the country's money supply and among numerous other records national bank loans, deposits and cash holdings increased to a total never before approached.

In the world of money the United States now stands pre-eminent among nations. It was an epochal year, in which the country made unprecedented strides toward the position of master of international finance. Developments in finance were along constructive lines that added tremendously to the strength of money and credit conditions throughout the forty-eight states of the American Commonwealth.

From a standpoint of an exporting nation the United States now leads the world, according to figures made public by the foreign department of the National City Bank, New York. Although the statistics for the full year are not yet complete, it is believed the United States will far surpass Great Britain, our nearest competitor.

For the eleven months ended Dec. 1 the total value of exports from the seventeen principal ports of the country was $1,616,000,000 against $1,516,000,000, the estimated aggregate value of Great Britain's exports. The comparison with $1,568,311,000, the value of Great Britain's exports in 1914, and $1,311,000,000 for the United States in the same year. For 1914, more than a normal year, Great Britain's exports were $1,544,000,000 against $1,311,000,000 for the United States.

NATION WIDE "BABY WEEK"
Plans for "Baby Week" in March are now being made by more than 400 communities, according to an announcement by the children's bureau of the department of labor.

The need of bettering conditions surrounding babies will be impressed on the general public and the parents of infants. Many prominent organizations all over the country have approved the movement and are preparing to contribute toward its success. The General Federation of Women's Clubs has undertaken the promotion of the movement. The extension division of state universities have promised special attention to rural communities. It is felt by those behind the movement that the death of 200,000 babies before they are twelve months old is a tragedy. A booklet of practical suggestions for "baby week" campaigns has been prepared by the children's bureau. This will be distributed free of charge.

seely concerned on both sides as any rivalry in ancient or modern times. It is to Great Britain, not only by word of mouth, but by treaty, solemnly signed, sealed and delivered.

The aim of each nation that has ever sought dominion in the great regions known as India has been commercial and not colonial.

As Admiral Mahan pointed out in "The Problem of Asia," India constitutes a highly important "base" of military and naval power, as well as an area valuable in itself.

As a source of wealth, it is the richest "possession" on the face of the earth. It yields annual revenues of $500,000,000.

For twenty-five centuries there has been a constant flow of gold and silver into India from the western nations. It has been one of the unchanging economic conditions of the world, and one which rulers of different lands, desiring for it, have tried in vain to stop.

Complaints of India's appetite for gold began in the time of the Carthaginians, who in the fourth century B. C. dreamed of gold they procured from Spain to that country. Pliny tells of unenviable profits made in the first year of the Christian era of exports of the precious metal from the Indian empire, worth $10,000,000 of it being sent annually to India.

RECORD-BREAKING EXPORTS FROM AMERICA TO WAR RIDDEN EUROPE ARE UNPRECEDENTED

Photos by American Press Association.

New York Custom House and Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port.

CUSTOMERS officials of the United States are about the busiest men in the country today, for never before has the value of our exports approached the tremendous figures now resulting from the European war. Each outgoing cargo has to be inspected carefully, and drastic measures are in view to prevent any deception. The same is true with the imports to America, which are not as large now as in the days when Europe was at peace.

From the port of New York alone there were exported goods last year valued at practically $1,500,000,000, nearly double the exports of any previous year. Exports through the port of Philadelphia in 1914 were more than double those of the year previous and breaks all records for that city. According to the report published by the commissioners of navigation, $135,000,000 worth of goods were shipped through that port last year. This is $25,000,000 more than were exported in 1914. Only once before have exports reached the hundred million mark, and that in 1907, when the figure was $104,570,527. Norfolk, Boston, Charleston, New York and other ports have also reported unprecedented increases in their exports. So the present condition of the country is not confined to any one section, but is general.

What place the past years' events in American business will have on the future history of the world no one would venture to forecast, but from all over the country come predictions of a prosperity in the new year which will place the United States in a permanent position as a leader of industry and finance, a position in which this country must be consulted on future problems having an international scope. The country's outward trade surpassed all records. Output of iron and steel, of copper and other metals rose to amounts previously unheard of. Production of wheat, oats, barley, rice and hay far surpassed the predictions of other years. Production of corn was by a few million bushels of a new high record. Because of the contracts placed for war material the price of many commodities reached unparalleled amounts; prices of stocks likewise back

WITHIN THE LAW

BY MARVIN DANA

Mary opened a drawer of the desk and took out the document entitled that missing from Harris and held it forth.

"What's this?" Burke stormed, but he took the paper.

Demarest looked over the inspector's shoulder, and his eyes grew larger as he read. When he was at the end of the reading, he related the passive woman at the desk with a new respect.

"What's this?" Burke repeated helplessly. Mary was kind enough to make the document clear to him.

"It's a temporary restraining order, issued by the supreme court instructing you to let me alone until you have legal proof that I have done the law."

"But it can't be done," shouted Burke.

"You might ask Mr. Demarest," Mary suggested pleasantly. "As to whether or not it can be done, I am leaving it to him. The court has said that it can be done, and I am sure it will be done."

"Can you ask that?" Burke turned to Demarest. "I am sure it will be done," Demarest said. "I am sure it will be done."

Life in The Fleet

No More Human Type of Creature

Than The British Sailor

The London Times has been publishing a series of letters from a writer who during the war of the past years has been serving with the Grand Fleet. He says: "The fact that thousands of letters are written each day from the fleet to people ashore, and that practically no one outside of it knows anything of its daily life, is one of the most remarkable conditions incident to this remarkable war. The art of writing letters without saying anything has been brought to a new perfection in the fleet, and so steady and firm is this reference that it has become a part of the life of the fleet. People have almost given up wondering and speculating about conditions of life that are so completely hidden from them, and are content to regard the navy as a mysterious machine which produces perfection and efficiency to an unlimited extent.

There is no need to hide it, there is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

is nothing to be ashamed of, and there is nothing to be proud of. It is in the nature of the machine, and there

"Hazel Kirke" Well Staged by Academy

The dramatic club of the Knight Academy selected a splendid play this year when they chose, "Hazel Kirke," and they selected talented players when the roles were given to the artists who appeared in the cast last Friday evening. Inspired by a large audience the cast was seen at its best. The staging was skillfully done and the general presentation was very good. The play is a long one but it never dragged one minute. Interest was well sustained throughout.

Thomas C. Roney as Dunstan Kirke gave a finished version of a very difficult role. He showed that he has had a varied experience on the stage. Next must come A. Robbins as Pitticus Green. This is by far the best showing this clever young man has made in this city. His acting was easy and free and his reading most commendable. Myron Holmes as the squire but true-hearted Aaron Rodney, sustained his part with ability, as did Vernon Coombs in the role of Lord Carrington. This actor need more vigor and life in places but his interview with the worthy Pitticus was splendidly brought out. T. Allen, Oliver McLean, A. S. Bullock Archie Larson and Owen Roney in minor roles sustained the leads well.

Mrs. Roxie Robbins, in title role, appeared to advantage and acquitted herself with fresh laurels. In our opinion, however, this lady is better suited to a role calling for vivacity and wild, innocent freedom. She loses strength in the interpretation of profound emotion. Jean Miller looked quite chic and gave a lively version of a role entirely adapted to her. She is a promising actress. Ireta Peterson as Lady Travers was good although with more attention to detail she could have made much more of her part. Myrtle Bennett did well, as did also Fernie Workman as Clara, a servant girl.
